Although STOVL aircraft carriers or amphibious assault ship are categories of ships that were conventionally referred to as light aircraft carriers, but fixed-wing aircraft was limited to Harrier, but with its appearance F-35B, its capability it was a dramatic improvement. In addition, by operating the V-22 Osprey's aircraft carrier, it can leave not only transportation missions but also air refueling, which greatly increases the flexibility of the F-35B's strategy. It is also possible to leave early warning and anti-submarine patrol, which can bring STOVL aircraft carrier a function comparable to the conventional aircraft carrier.

Officials under fire after a petition & an internal employee survey surfaced that characterized EMS as being in "critical condition" because of severe staff shortages, unreasonably long shifts, long response times, poor morale & questionable leadership.
greenvilleonline.com/story/news/201...

Had nothing else happened, that would have meant they'd have to stay past 5 p.m. just to finish up their paperwork and clean and restock their truck. But en route, he said, they got another call.

"We ran four or five more calls that night trying to get back to the station because the system was so busy and we were the closest (to the call locations)," he said. "We got back to the station around 10:30-11 that night."

Because the call volume is so heavy, Giegerich said paramedics are always stressed out and feeling anxious.

"You've got family at home that wants to see you and you're supposed to get off at 5," he said. "But you don't get off, and then you get up at 4:30 a.m. to go to work and the kids are already asleep. And then you get home and they're in bed."

"And when you are home, you're just exhausted."

"You're in the vortex and there's no escape," said Chris Johnson, a paramedic who worked at Greenville County EMS for 17 years until 2016. He said he presented a report to Kernell in January 2015 outlining some of these same concerns.

"On average, there are six to eight calls a shift, but it's common to have 10 or 12 or 14 calls a shift," he added. "We're walking zombies. Anyone in EMS, you don't get any set sleep schedule."

Paramedics also witness difficult situations every day that are tough to process.

As I've noted several times before, a national public health initiative to reduce rates of obesity, smoking, substance abuse alone can drop US healthcare costs per capita by at least $4000, putting us on par with UK, France, Germany and Canada.

Adam @Khanoisseur

Replying to @MichaelEHuck

Tackle all the variables that are driving up cost of healthcare: Reduce rates of obesity, smoking, substance abuse by 50%, reduce doctor's salaries and medical student debt (US doctors make 55-80% more than those in Canada, UK, France), allow Medicare to negotiate drug pricing...

US already has a form of "socialized medicine" - for veterans; VA is also allowed to negotiate drug prices. The question is can the system that botched ACA and healthcare.gov rollout and has not passed all spending bills on time since 1997 now scale out a VA-like system.

Peter @Biomaven

Replying to @Biomaven @ChopperDave18 @Khanoisseur

We just saw the political impact of a few hours delay at LaGuardia - multiply that by 100,000 as hospitals lay off nurses or go bankrupt and close while docs get their pay slashed and insurance companies flood the airwaves with criticism.

15

Adam @Khanoisseur · 46m

3. It took >5 years for Obamacare to stabilize and it only covers 12 million people (compared to 155 million on private, employer-provided insurance). Assuming best-case rollout scenario for "Medicare for All", how many years for it to "stabilize"?

Adam @Khanoisseur

Despite accusations of GOP sabotage, ACA is somewhat better after Trump removed the Obamacare individual mandate but also because the economy continues to create jobs. Most people (160 million) get their health insurance from their employers vs from Obamacare (12 million).

Adam @Khanoisseur · 42m

4. So when politicians propose plans, it would be nice if they could also show us their "what could go wrong" list - or be transparent about hiccups we can expect, instead of selling us on the rosier of scenarios based on cherry-picked data. Give people the full picture.
